Summary of Questions and Answers:

The Company has cash and cash equivalents of 111.5 billion yen. Do you have any specific M&A plans? If you do not have any specific plans to use cash, you should use part of the balance as dividends.

< A1 >

The cash and cash equivalents include standby funds to enable a flexible response to M&A opportunities. The consolidated payout ratio of the annual dividends for the preceding term was in the high 30s, which was linked to the results for the preceding term. We will continue to pay stable dividends.

<O2>

The sums of the sales and earnings of the business segments stated in Segment Information on pages 3 through 5 of the notice of the convocation of the shareholders' meeting do not equal the figures in the consolidated statements of income. Why?

< A2 >

The sales and earnings relating to inter-segment transactions are eliminated in the consolidated statements of income.

<03>

I understand that the amusement industry is in a slump. How do you intend to manage Taito in the future?

< A3 >

The domestic amusement market is a 900 billion yen market and has maintained modest growth at an annual growth rate of 3-5%. If we properly assess customers' trends and institute appropriate outlet development strategies, we will have sufficient opportunities to generate profits.

<04>

What percentage of your business is accounted for by overseas operations?

< A4 >

The percentage differs depending on the business segment. In game software operations, overseas operations account for more than half of total sales. Since there are also business segments operating primarily in domestic markets, overseas sales account for about 20% of the total sales of the entire Company. However, certain segments operating mainly in domestic markets plan to develop overseas operations. We will develop overseas operations more aggressively.

<O5>

What management benchmarks will you use after the Group shifts to a holding company system?

<A5>

Our immediate goal is to achieve a recurring income of 50 billion yen in the term ending March 2011.

<Q6>

What do you think of the idea of introducing game rental service as a countermeasure against used game market?

<A6>

We are not considering introducing rentals. We are looking at selling physical media by adding network/online elements to game content to address the used game issue.

<07>

I have heard that all employees will be transferred to an unlisted spin-off subsidiary in association with the shift to a holding company system. How will you deal with the risks, including a deterioration of worker morale and a loss of human resources?

< A7 >

We have explained the shift to a holding company system through the incorporation-type company split to employees and have ensured that they understand the scheme. More and more game companies are shifting to holding company systems, and our employees don't seem concerned.

<Q8>

I worry that you are late in developing operations. I hope you will increase the corporate value and the stock price.

< A8 >

We are not delaying in our decision making. If the present management is reappointed, we will continue to make every effort to perform our duties and improve the corporate value.

The profit rate fell. I would like you to cut expenses and return more profits to shareholders by paying more dividends.

< A9 >

We have emphasized the growth strategy of the Group and have aggressively expanded our operations. As a result, the profit rate has fallen in relative terms. We will improve profitability and will aim for medium- to long-term growth.

< Q10 >

How do you operate the Board of Directors?

< A10 >

The Board of Directors holds ad hoc meetings in addition to its regular monthly meetings to ensure active discussions.

<Q11>

You announced that you would release Dragon Quest IX in 2007 and put off the release to 2008. When will it be launched?

<011>

We are facing many difficulties, which include challenges arising from providing this game series on hand-held type device for the first time and issues arising from the incorporation of communication functions. We are committed to developing the game despite all the difficulties.
